— Krystal, 14 (above), smokes about a pack a day but now knows she must quit

SMOKING: Truth or Dare?

See and believe — like the teens in this video! Some were unimpressed by statistics. Some were sceptical. Some wanted to believe they were immune or lucky. Others didn't care. But all of them changed when they saw for themselves what it was doing to them and what it could do to them later.

See why tobacco is a drug: affecting the brain and oxygen levels throughout the body; causing disease; inflicting pain and suffering; destroying dreams; and killing — more people than AIDS, other drugs, car accidents, and murder combined.

Truth or Dare? Dare to see and believe the truth — for yourself.

Walter (left) comments on smoking — before and after him and his friends witness the autopsy of an emphysema victim

Before: “I understand the effects that smoking can have on the body; I understand it can affect you at a young age. I just live my life day by day and whatever happens, the ramifications, I will accept and deal with later. If I know that I've lived my life to the fullest doing something that I enjoy, then dying won't be a problem for me.”

After: “That was so gross! I'm sorry, that was just like the sickest thing I've ever seen before in my life. That could be my lung, you know. That could be me, my lung, on the table getting chopped up.”

Hosted by Leeza Gibbons, with appearances by Boyz II Men, Judd Hirsch, Jeff Bagwell, Christy Turlington, and others. Starring teens who decide to quit!

“Highlights” include:

- the autopsy of a smoker
- baseball players who chew
- physical differences between smoking and non-smoking twins
- computer simulations of the rapid aging process caused by smoking
- interviews with lifelong smokers who are paying the price
- a young mother's slow death from emphysema.

"What else do people do to try to look like this? — Diet, drugs, steroids..."

— Students see how unrealistic the idealized male and female bodies have become people physically and emotionally. Meet a retired pro football player who talks about steroids and sports. Also meet a professional model who battled bulimia ... and go behind the scenes to see how digital artists manipulate photographs to make models look thinner, taller and fuller in all the "right" places.

In a society where 50% of boys and 75% of girls are unhappy with their appearance, and where the rate of depression and suicide among teens is so high, this program is a must-see!

Purchase of this video includes free download of the accompanying Discussion Guide from our website. Note: this program is an extract from the video, Surviving High School (see p. 3).

"Cliques may divide a campus, but it's gender roles that begin the separation as teens struggle with what it means to be a boy and what it means to be a girl."

— Host Leeza Gibbons

"I feel better about myself when I weigh less. I don't know, it almost makes me feel good that I am doing harm to my body. I don't really know why. It's not just about food and losing weight. There are a lot of underlying issues ... like a lot of people need the control."

— Amanda speaks to a group of students. She weighs 32kg and has been hospitalized 18 times for anorexia

The Truth About BODY IMAGE

The Teen Files Series

Follow eleven teens as they're forced to confront how popular ideas of "beauty" can damage young

"I was bulimic for seven years... I have seven caps and 11 root canals: when you throw up, your stomach acid comes up in your mouth (and) actually eats the enamel of your teeth. My bulimia started (when) someone at school told me that I was fat... I didn't think that it would take over seven years of my life... (But now) I eat three times a day, which is a very important thing to do."

— Model Magali Amedei (above left) talks with teens and does a fun fashion shoot with high school student Melissa

"We go into the bathroom in, like, a group and go: I'm going to throw up and then you could throw up and then she'll throw up... Appearance is so important to me. I wanted to be a model when I was little. And I was going to be in gymnastics and ice-skating. Those are all like pretty things — but for those things you gotta be small-figured."

Surviving High School

Explore the complex world of social pressures faced by teenagers today through the stories of 11 high school kids struggling to fit in with peers ... while dealing with harassment, stereotypes, teasing, drugs, depression, violence, family problems, and more.

"Every life is shaped by milestones, conflicts and pain. When the teens are asked to chart their own lives in words and pictures, they discover they have more in common than they thought."

— A teen "charts" his life during a cooperative retreat their true selves to each other, emerge from their cliques and isolation, and begin practising a mature acceptance and respect in their daily interactions. Viewers also see the teens' honest encounters with Keena Turner, a former San Francisco 49er who relates how he became a Super Bowl Champion without the use of steroids, and with Magali Amedei, a model who recounts her painful battle with bulimia.

Surviving High School is a compelling, searing video that dares teens to examine vital issues and motivates them to make positive changes. It's an invaluable resource for kids, teachers and parents alike. Video purchase includes a FREE Leader's Guide.

— Sarah Waters, Project Coordinator, AADAC, Edmonton AB

"These are very powerful videos ... There's no preaching. The ultimate decision is still up to them."

— Brian Logan, Alcohol & Drug Counsellor, Sioux Lookout ON

The Truth About Drugs

See what it's like to live a drug nightmare. Join groups of teens as people from different organizations show them the realities of drug use and overdose. Visit a hospital clinic for rape counselling; a convalescent home to meet an overdose victim; a jail to see what it's like to be incarcerated for dealing; a morgue to view the organs of kids who died from "huffing"; a neonatal unit for babies born with drug addictions; a treatment centre where a teenager struggles to conquer her addiction.

Today's teens often overlook the dangers they face when using — including rape, homelessness, suicide, jail time, and the inability to focus or study. The damage drugs inflict is not always obvious — but here they discover the real consequences for themselves, their friends and family, innocent babies ... everyone.
